

In Edinburgh, as part of our aims for Getting it right for every child, we want to make sure that your rights are well known and well respected.

Since 1989 the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child has 'grown up' into and across the nations of Europe. We are making it part of our values here in Scotland - and here in our community in Edinburgh.

You can get full information by looking online at <https://www.gov.scot/publications/un-convention-rights-child-guide-children-young-people-2/>

An important part of that is making sure that you have all the information you need about these rights - to help you to make good choices - and to make sure you can get the right support when you need

That means supporting you in all aspects of your Wellbeing, to be all of the things listed here:

Considering what you think and what your family thinks is key to getting the right support when you need it.

It would be great if only everything in life went smoothly and worked out perfectly. But of course, things don't always happen like that and sometimes you might need help. If you need support about a concern you have, you can ask the worker you get on best with (teacher, youth worker or someone else) to assist you in getting that support.

Every child and young person has a 'Named Person' that they can go to. That person can assist you and can also co-ordinate things with other organisations if extra help is needed.

It's important that you know that all those who work with children, young people and their families in Edinburgh want to work more closely together to make sure that you get the right help, at the right time, for as long as you need it.
